Wes Franklin is a lettering artist and muralist who uses the power of hand-crafted lettering to solve creative challenges for clients locally and around the world.

He discovered hand lettering in 2014, when he left his full time graphic design job to pursue running his own business. Lettering started out as a hobby but quickly became a passion, and he found himself offering custom lettering as a service to clients. For more than five years he has been taking on custom lettering commissions and lettering-focussed murals.

Wes believes lettering has the power to add depth of meaning to words and he loves drawing letters to communicate meaningful messages.

He is also open to collaborating with other creatives.
